

The Kitch firm, headquartered in Detroit, is one of the largest law firms in southeastern Michigan. The firm prides itself on its ability to offer outstanding representation in virtually every aspect of real estate, including management, development, and acquisition.

The attorneys comprising the commercial real estate practice collectively bring several years of experience in many complementary areas: transactional work, environmental law, building and construction law--offering clients the convenience of "one-stop shopping." Many of the firm's attorneys serve as instructors for seminars on particular aspects of commercial real estate, both for the general community and other real estate attorneys.

John Sier leads the firm's commercial and real estate team, concentrating his practice on dispute avoidance and resolution of commercial and construction contract issues. He sits on the panel of construction neutrals for the American Arbitration Association and is an ICLE-certified mediator.

Mr. Sier recently completed a three year term on the Board of Directors of BOMA Detroit and is currently the Co-chair of its Government Affairs Committee. This year he was appointed to the Strategic Industry Group for the BOMA International Medical Office Building & Health Care Facilities; in 2002, he received the Outstanding Service Award from BOMA Metro Detroit for his efforts on behalf of BOMA and the real estate industry.

The Kitch firm's clients cover a broad spectrum of interests relating to real estate and construction, including commercial entities, hospital systems, educational institutions, public entities, developers, professional corporations, as well as contractors and designers.

BOMA members from the Kitch firm:

John M. Sier
john.sier@kitch.com

Alan J. Taylor
alan.taylor@kitch.com

"My goal? To zealously advocate for my clients within the boundaries of the law. Each issue and client is given the necessary time and attention to get the best possible results."

"It's my job to know my clients' challenges and concerns. Actively participating in key industry associations ensures that I'm ready to respond—whatever the need may be."